

WILHELM IS ADVISED LEMBERG WILL FALL BY FIRST OF MONTH

Russian Resistance In Galicia Has Collapsed Under Terrific Battering of Austro-German Artillery and Repeated Rushes of Teuton Infantry, Though Germanics Lose Heavily

LONDON, June 16.—General von Mackensen, commanding the armies of the Germanic allies in Galicia, telegraphed to the Kaiser today that he hopes to occupy Lemberg on or before July 1. Lemberg, which has been the Teutonic objective since Przemyśl was recaptured, fell yesterday.

Under the terrific battering of the Austro-German artillery and the repeated rushes of the German infantry, Russian resistance has again collapsed. The German tactics have been enormously costly, but they have brought Germany what she wanted, and she was willing to pay.

Russian Counter Attacks Reversed

All Russian counter attacks have been hurled back. Lemberg is seriously threatened once more, and Vienna claims progress along the entire front in Middle and Southeastern Galicia. The German drive is on again.

Official Russian communications explain but do not alter the results. "Generally speaking," says a note from army headquarters, "the enemy uses in an attack ten projectiles of medium calibre, weighing more than eight hundred pounds, against each of our rifle-men, holding a space of about one yard on the front of our trenches. During the recent advance of General von Mackensen from Gorlice to Naklo, one officer received within a short interval of time on his front about ten thousand bombs."

Terrific Firing Stupefies Soldiers

In a four-hour bombardment of another position, the note continues, the Germans discharged about seven hundred thousand projectiles, or double the quantity formerly thought necessary for a six months' siege of a great and well provisioned fortress.

"In the presence of such a fire," headquarters observes, "without considering the serious losses, all the men within the sphere of its action become more or less stupefied."

The note goes on to argue that it will be impossible for German factories to meet such a lavish expenditure of ammunition and that the German infantry, "spoiled by the support of the artillery and accustomed exclusively to attack men stupefied or poisoned, will soon have to fight under very different and more difficult conditions."

Germany Shows No Wavering

Reasoning from the difficulties Russia has experienced in supplying her armies with ammunition, the argument is sound enough, but the sufficient reply is that Germany seems able to keep on doing it, and that against an enemy which cannot reply in kind, such tactics are inevitably successful.

Turning to the wider strategy of the situation, Petrograd asserts that the object of the prodigious efforts made by the enemy in the past few days is the encircling of Lemberg.

"General von Mackensen is repeating the maneuver which he practiced at the beginning of November in front of Lodz, when he broke our lines near Strykow and Brzezyn, while at the same time an attempt was made to turn us with his left flank," says Petrograd.

"The same maneuver is being repeated now, but on a larger scale, not with isolated corps but with entire armies. General Mackensen's turning movement still is incomplete, though some of his regiments have lost three quarters of their effectives."

Asphyxiating Gas Bombs Used

"In spite of the enemy's tremendous losses, which have amounted to hundreds of thousands, it would be premature to speak of the result of this battle, which is of great intensity."

The note mentions the employment for the first time on the eastern front of asphyxiating gas bombs.

If the Germanic allies are able to make their defeat of Russia as complete as General von Mackensen, judging from his telegram to the Kaiser, evidently hopes to make it, an abrupt about face toward Italy is on the cards.

After assuming strong defensive positions somewhere near the Galician frontier with comparatively few troops, it is supposed the same formidable engine that battered all the dash-out of Russia will be turned against the Southern invader.

Italy Profits By Lessons Taught

Italy has ample stores of ammunition and, profiting from the lessons taught the other combatants, is employing her artillery lavishly, and apparently with remarkable precision, against the Austrian frontier defenses.

Twenty-five thousand Austrian troops left Trient yesterday to stiffen the Rovereto defenses, in which the Italian guns have pounded several holes.

In the neighborhood of Gorizia and Gradisca, there is heavy fighting, as Italy pushes on toward Trieste.

LUSITANIA UNARMED AND NOT TRANSPORT

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

LONDON, June 15.—That the Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine, was unarmed and had never been fitted out as a transport was the declaration of Sir Edward Carson, the new British attorney general, in addressing the court at the opening of the board of trade inquiry into the loss of the British steamer.

Sir Edward said he is able to give a complete denial to the contention of Germany that the Lusitania was armed and carrying guns, thus serving as an excuse to the navy.

The hearings are being held partly in secret.

ARMY MEN OPPOSE MEXICAN INVASION

Officers Say That German Incident Forbids Sending of Troops into Republic

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Contrary to the policy which has moved many army officers for the last two years, the United States should step in and restore peace and order in Mexico, if necessary, by an armed invasion, the best opinion among officers now seems to be that this is no time for sending troops into that country.

The officers make the point that the standing army would be needed as a nucleus for the real army which would have to be raised in the event of trouble with Germany.

It would not be a good thing, they say, for the government to have to raise an army in preparation for a war with Germany while the regular forces were busy in Mexico, and unable to render any assistance in the getting together of the million or more men to be raised if the United States should become directly involved in the European war.

Carranza Is Stubborn

CHRISTIANA SOUND SCENE OF A RAID

German Submarine Sinks Swedish Steamer There and Serious Results May Follow

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

LONDON, June 16.—Despatches from Copenhagen relate that the small Swedish steamer Varandö of 694 tons was torpedoed yesterday by a German submarine in Christiansa Sound.

If such should prove to be the fact, it will be difficult for Sweden and Norway to receive it as other than a direct attack.

More than a mistake of the vessel's nationality is involved. Christiansa Sound is far outside the war zone. It lies due north of the Danish peninsula of Jutland, opening onto the Skagerack and bounded on three sides by Norse territory.

What a German submarine should be doing in those waters and how its commander should dare attack any vessel, even a belligerent warship, within the limits of Norway's jurisdiction is something British writers do not venture to explain.

Confirmation of the despatch or its refutation is eagerly awaited. No loss of life is mentioned.

The trawler Argyll was torpedoed without warning yesterday and sank in two minutes. Seven of the crew of eleven were drowned and the others brought to Harwich.

GREEK WAR PARTY SWEEPS ELECTION

Premier Venizelos Returned To Power By Overwhelming Vote and King Is Beaten

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

LONDON, June 16.—The overwhelming victory won by the war party in Greece, which has carried the country at the general elections held last week by a two-thirds plurality and returned to power Premier Venizelos, who was dismissed by King Constantine, comes as no surprise to those who have been watching Greek politics closely. The sentiment of the nation for espousing forcibly the cause of the Allies is overpowering and now has reached a degree of fervor which it is believed will make it impossible for any government to withstand it.

Constantine's Illness

Due To Knife Wound?

Under a Paris date line of June 5, the San Francisco Examiner prints the following explanation of the continued illness of King Constantine of Greece, otherwise reported to be suffering from a protracted attack of pleurisy:

"The illness from which King Constantine of Greece is now suffering, according to a statement made today by a diplomatic personage of a neutral power, is due to a heated discussion in April between the king and his wife Queen Sophie, who is a sister of Kaiser Wilhelm, and who in spite of her conversion to the Orthodox Greek church, remains devoted to the policy of her imperial brother and to the cause of Germany."

Queen Sophie, whose occasional outbursts of impetuous temper are well known, seized a sharp-pointed metallic paper knife and, carried away by her hot temper, plunged it into her husband's side. The blade pierced the pleura and grazed the lower lobe of the left lung."

'ATCHERLEY CASE' FINALLY DECIDED

Remarkable Litigation Ends By Leaving Property In Hands of Lewers & Cooke

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

After years of litigation, the federal Supreme Court, according to advices received here yesterday, has finally decided the historic Atcherley case, affecting the title to a plot of land on the corner of Queen and Panchow streets, which henceforth indisputably belongs to the present occupants, Lewers & Cooke. Mrs. Atcherley, wife of Doctor Atcherley, once the center of a board of health turmoil, along with the famous J. Lor Wallace and the "female rocks," claimed title to the property, valued at $40,000, and has been fighting for possession since 1901.

The history of the litigation and of the claim advanced by Mrs. Atcherley presents a number of curious things, but nothing in the case is more extraordinary than the fact that while Mrs. Atcherley claims to have bought the property with a horse valued at fifty dollars that was never delivered, she has profited out of her claim without winning it to the extent of $21,000.

Kalakaua Occupied Lot

The land involved is the lot where King Kalakaua lived during his reign and where he had lived during his boyhood, and even then the title had been in litigation, the original suit having been instituted in 1855, although it was thought that the matter was settled by the old decisions which seemed to take the view that Kalakaua and his heirs held title.

Judge Philip L. Weaver, who is perhaps best acquainted with the various angles of the matter and who heard the original content as judge of the land registration court, gives its history as follows:

"It happened that Mary Atcherley, a Hawaiian woman, related to one of the people about Kalakaua's Court, dug up aim that the legal title of the premises was in a person by the name of Kanui, and that she could buy this interest for a small sum."

Good Source of Wealth. The deed recites that for the sum of fifty dollars, the owner conveys all her interest in the premises to Mary Atcherley. With this deed Mary Atcherley set up claim to the legal title of the lumber yards, then occupied by Lewers & Cooke, when that company petitioned for a registered title and cited her to appear.

"It is interesting to note how this claim developed as a very successful source of wealth to Mary Atcherley. For I am informed of claims for money loaned to her for her support during the litigation amounting to not less than $21,000."

"This was a sure thing for the claimant, who had no other property from which to pay her creditors. If she lost the suit she still had enjoyed the benefit of a fair-sized fortune; if she won she still had a good balance to live on."

"Now the Supreme Court of the United States is said, by a cable message today, to have reversed its former decision, sustaining Mary Atcherley's title, and to take the view which I took when land court judge, that the title to the premises rightfully belonged to Lewers & Cooke, Limited. This decision of the Supreme Court is particularly gratifying to me because it was the only decision given by me as judge of the land court in the seven years I acted, which was reversed."

"The Supreme Court of the United States has done an unusual thing. It has reversed itself and in doing so reversed also the opinion of the Supreme Court of the Territory, which sat and decided on the appeal from my court at that time."

"The local Supreme Court, as now constituted, has since disapproved of the old decision, but followed the opinion of the upper court under protest. It seems clear now that the final decision will give to Lewers & Cooke the registered title."

"The most remarkable feature of the case is the wonderfully successful speculation in land title made by Mary Atcherley. She has promised to pay fifty dollars, there are rumors that the sum was to be paid by her giving the grantor a horse in place of money and it is said the horse was never delivered. She has actually enjoyed the benefits of $21,000 that I know of."

"She received $400 for one dollar and still lost her suit."

Luck of Some People

"The luck of some people is wonderful."

Incidentally her attorney's who have fought the case through for years are out of pocket and have lost their time and efforts."

In the recent argument before the Supreme Court, D. L. Withington appeared for Lewers & Cooke and Judge Lyle Dekey for Mrs. Atcherley.

FRENCH MAKE SPECTACULAR AIR RAID ON GERMAN CITY

They Enter Grand Duchy of Baden With Twenty-one Aeroplanes and Inflict Great Damage Upon Capital of Karlsruhe

ANTI-AIRSHIP RIFLES BRING DOWN TWO CRAFT

Aviators Drop More Than One Hundred Bombs Upon Arms Factory and Military Headquarters, and Big Fire Follows

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

PARIS, June 16.—A great air raid, in which twenty-three aeroplanes took part, was made against the Baden capital, Karlsruhe, early this morning. Two of the aeroplanes were brought down by gun fire, twenty-one units of the air fleet returning in safety to their base, after inflicting a great amount of damage upon the Baden city.

Although the raid was made in retaliation for the air raids of the Germans on open French and British cities, the aviators made their targets the arms factory, railroad station and the chateau in which are established the headquarters of several prominent army officers and members of the general naval staff.

Many Bombs Dropped

The aeroplane fleet left its base in France at three o'clock this morning arriving over Karlsruhe at half-past five o'clock, the distance from the "nearest" point of the French border being seventy miles. The aviators bombarded the selected points of attack, dropping in all one hundred and thirty projectiles.

A great number of fires broke out immediately after the bombardment and a panic took place at the railroad station, perceptible to the airmen.

Two Machines Dropped

Returning, the air fleet was subjected to a violent bombardment from anti-airship guns and two of the machines were forced to come down. None of the other machines was hit.

This big raid followed a minor raid on Karlsruhe yesterday afternoon, in which five French machines took part, dropping bombs on the city for forty-five minutes and doing apparently considerable damage.

Reports from Karlsruhe yesterday evening state that in this preliminary raid several persons were killed and wounded, but no statement of general damage done has been sent out.
